March 3, 4, 5, 7, 10, 11 (expense reports requested for review stopped at this date)

In view of the volume of visits to ITBD and the absence of any notification to the BofE of these visits, a request is made that for one of the last two full months (January 2014 or February 2014) the finance committee of the BofE be supplied with background information; i.e., (1) copy of sign-in attendance sheets for meeting attendance; (2) topic of meeting(s); (3) name of at least two contact persons at ITBD who can verify (nearly) daily attendance; (4) detail what was gained from each (nearly) daily trip. Otherwise, there appears to be no plausible reason why the superintendent would go to ITBD with such regularity. Because of this prolific travel, the committee needs provided to them verification of his attendance at ITBD for school-related business.

For more than 20 years, Central Connecticut State University's Institute of Technology and Business Development (ITBD) has been providing Connecticut's businesses and aspiring entrepreneurs with the tools to start and grow successful companies through technical training, skill development, industrial modernization, marketing, financial and networking opportunities. Combining the expertise of a professional staff, academic experts, private sector advisors, and government resources, ITBD turns ideas into ventures, aids the growth of existing businesses, and helps Connecticut's business community succeed in today's challenging domestic and international market.

ITBD has been helping area companies since 1986. The Institute, located at 185 Main Street in downtown New Britain (CCSU's Downtown Campus), supports Connecticut businesses and organizations by providing a full spectrum of training, technology and manufacturing process assistance, government procurement services, small business development and conferencing services. Its cost effective business incubation services provide start-up companies a chance to grow and thrive. Through its business training programs, ITBD provides the resources necessary to give new business start-up companies in Connecticut competitive and economic advantages.

Quarterly, the ITBD publishes a newsletter that is mailed to over 4200 companies in CT. The newsletter informs businesses of upcoming, interesting and innovative activities at the Institute. ITBD also has e-mail lists of individuals at companies in the state who have specifically requested timely updates on items and programs of interest. To sign up for the newsletter, click here. The Institute of Technology and Business Development also houses the New Britain Industrial Museum. To find further information regarding the history of the New Britain Industrial Museum visit their website at <http://www.nbim.org/index2.asp>.

For more detailed information regarding services of ITBD and its scope of operations please go to the Training Center, the Procurement Technical Assistance Center, the Conference Center and the Community Business Development Center listed under the Our Services Tab above.
